Subject: Microsoft Settlement

Good Morning,
I am writing, as a personal computer user, to complain about the proposed Microsoft settlement. I think that it is all about letting Microsoft off the hook, as has been done in the past, and has nothing to do with providing consumers, both commercial and home, with competition in the internet browser and operating system markets.

If you intend to punish Microsoft, you must punish them. Not just take cash out of them which they will recoup quickly from their established monopoly. You must break their monopoly. Consumers must be given a choice. For example you could legislate that all computers must be purchasable without a Microsoft product installed.

This is just a thought.
Thank you for taking the time to read my ideas.
Regards,
Ian Cameron
